Gearset makes its DevOps tool freely available for Work.com users

London, UK -- June 25, 2020 -- Gearset, the leading DevOps tool for Salesforce, announced today that it will be available until the end of the year at no additional charge for use with Work.com orgs, the solution that Salesforce has developed to help companies return to work safely during Covid-19.

Work.com provides businesses with essential solutions designed to help them reopen the workplace as quickly as possible, while at the same time keeping employees, customers, partners, and communities safe and informed during the COVID-19 crisis and beyond.

Salesforce's Work.com helps companies to:

- get products to support their return to the workplace.
- find thought leadership content from renowned experts.
- access all the latest COVID-19 data.
- learn through inspiring stories.

Work.com has gained significant interest from businesses and governments at every level in the last few months. A great many of Salesforce's top system integrators and technology partners have been building their own solutions on Work.com. In support of these efforts, Gearset is now making its comprehensive DevOps solution available, at no additional cost until the end of 2020, for all Work.com orgs.

"These are particularly challenging times for everybody, in every sector, and we need businesses back on their feet as safely and quickly as possible. We are making Gearset available at no additional cost to Work.com users in an effort to make our own modest contribution to the COVID-19 recovery effort," says Kevin Boyle, CEO and co-founder of Gearset.

Gearset is used by companies of all shapes and sizes, from startups to some of the largest enterprises in the world. Teams using Gearset deploy 9x faster than with change sets, the Salesforce native deployment tooling. By putting its DevOps solution into the hands of teams and system integrators implementing Work.com, Gearset hopes to help companies safely reopen their workplaces sooner than previously imagined.
